Press release guide

Resources for Adobe video partners

Press releases are still a great way to get the word out about new products or events, and showcase your Adobe integrations. Press releases that mention Adobe or the Adobe applications must meet Adobe brand guidelines, and we're here to help with that.

This guide includes:

- Tips and best practices
- Adobe guidelines for approving partner press releases
- Correct Adobe product names and trademark bugging
- Press release template

The advantages of writing a press release

Writing a press release is a great opportunity to refine your message and reinforce the role of your company's products in Adobe ecosystem and in our joint customer workflows: What are you announcing? Who is it for? How will it help them?

Tips for a better press release

- Mention Adobe or the relevant Adobe product after your company name and announcement. Don't include mention of Adobe or Adobe products in the title, but rather the subtitle of your announcement.
- 2. Intro: Include a description about the Adobe tool and partner ecosystem (with links to product pages)
 - a. Adobe® Premiere® Pro: Adobe Premiere Pro, the industry leading video editor, is packed with hundreds of tools that enable you to craft the perfect story. And it's getting faster, more reliable, and more powerful all the time. Premiere Pro is made better by the surrounding Adobe Video Ecosystem: Adobe works closely with key partners to bring joint solutions to market that can significantly enhance your end-to-end video workflows.
 - Adobe After Effects*: With Adobe After Effects, the industry-standard motion graphics software, you can take any idea and make it move. Design for film, TV, video, and web.
 - Frame.io: Frame.io is one central hub that lets you share media, track feedback, and streamline your workflow so your team can work closely together from anywhere in the world.
- Body: This is also relevant for customer stories and case studies.
 - a. Along with customer workflow showcase, insert mentions of new features and any Al-powered features within Adobe video tools that play a role in your customer's workflows. Call these out alongside your tool to showcase the complimentary workflows and your role in Adobe's ecosystem.
- 4. Conclusion: Tie back to the value of your tool in context of the Adobe ecosystem
 - a. Example paragraph: Learn more about Adobe's Al-powered video editing features and give them a try by updating Premiere Pro and After Effects. And to enhance your workflow even further, explore the many extensions that are available as part of the Adobe Video ecosystem today.
 - b. Don't forget to insert hyperlinks where relevant!
- Use clear language and avoid extravagant claims. Include quotes by your CEO, a senior team member or a customer to add energy or commentary.
- 6. End with a Call To Action: let readers know where they can get your product, where they can see you at the show, or where they can learn more.
- Finally, submit your press release to the Adobe partner team for review. You can expect feedback from Adobe teams in approximately two weeks, though this timeline may vary.

Following Adobe guidelines and trademarking will help speed the review of your press release.

Leverage your news: Besides sending your press releases to the media, you can also post your news on blogs and use social media channels to spread the word.

Adobe guidelines

Adobe's PR team must comply with Adobe policies and brand guidelines when approving partner communications. Here are the key points:

This is your news.

Your press release should be written from your company's point of view. Avoid giving the appearance that this is a joint release. This means:

- Start the headline with your company name and what you are announcing.
- Avoid words like "partner" or "partnership" in the press release use words like "collaborate" or "working together to deliver solutions," etc.
- Don't include the Adobe stock symbol (ADBE) or Adobe boilerplate content.

Quotes from Adobe

You can request a quote for assessment but quotes from Adobe leadership are not guaranteed.

Adobe and the Adobe logo

Refer to the company as "Adobe" or "Adobe Inc.." Unless your own PR guidelines require full company names, just using "Adobe" is fine, and arguably more attractive.

Do not use the Adobe logo or product logos in your press release!

Adobe product names and trademarking

Adobe trade names in headlines

In headlines, use full product names (e.g. "Adobe Premiere Pro") without trademark symbols.

Use trademark symbols for first reference

"Adobe" and Adobe product names should include the trademark symbol in the first reference. After the first usage of a product name, you can omit the trademarking. For Premiere Pro, you can drop the "Pro" after first use.

Trademark symbols for commonly used Adobe video trade names

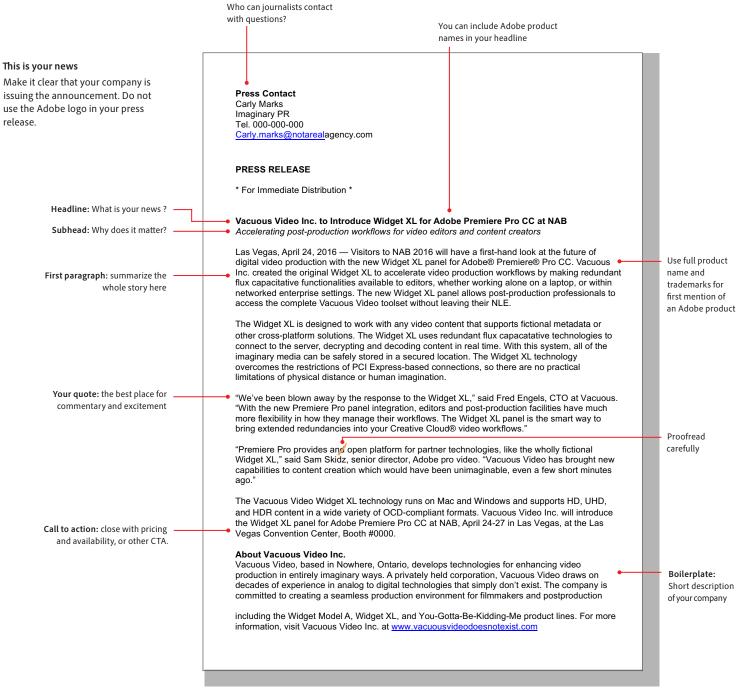

Adobe°	After Effects®
Adobe® Audition®	Adobe® Character Animator
Adobe® Media Encoder	Photoshop®
Adobe® Premiere® Pro	Creative Cloud®
Adobe® Stock	Adobe® Fonts
Behance [®]	Lumetri™

Brand and Social Media guidance

- Evangelize your press release or announcement on social media.
 Tag @adobevideo on relevant announcements for a potential repost!
 Look at our Social Media guide to note social handles and hashtags to include.
- Look at our Brand guidelines
- Download Adobe product logos and "Designed for" logos on the Adobe Video Partner Resource Center

Press release template

This fictitious announcement shows a typical press release format. Effective press releases respect the reader by providing clear information with a minimal use of superlatives.
